This is the September 2017 update of the Sheffield Cycle Map. Use it to figure out a route for your next journey or find new opportunities for a day out on your bike.

Please let us know if you spot any errors or anything missing and we will include this in the next update.

Using this map

We hope you find the signs and symbols used on this map easy to understand. Because Sheffield is such a hilly city we've only marked particularly steep or long gradients on cycle routes. For flatter routes in Sheffield you need to stick to the valley bottoms and follow river courses.

As you continue to cycle you will find even the long and steep hills more manageable (and there is no shame in getting off and walking as you go along).

We have tried to indicate key links between cycle routes where you will need to walk your bike using footpaths, rather than sticking to a cycle route and facing a significant detour.

Finally we would like to thank all those that have contributed to this long awaited edition with their knowledge and experience of cycling around this great city. If we have missed anything let us know so we can update for a future edition.
