Hillsborough Stadium Football Disaster, 15 April 1989

At the FA Cup semi final between Liverpool and Nottingham Forest which was held at Sheffield Wednesday's Hillsborough Stadium on 15 April 1989 a tragedy unfolded that involved the death of many Liverpool supporters.

As the kick-off time approached there was an increasing crush outside the Leppings Lane turnstiles. To avoid injury, the police decided to open an exit gate to let more fans into the stadium. This resulted in a major influx of fans into an already crowded part of the ground, causing many to be crushed against security and crush barriers on the terraces in the West Stand. 96 of them died from their injuries.

An inquiry, chaired by Lord Justice Taylor, published its findings (known as the Taylor report) in August 1989 and January 1990. It outlined the events of that day and made a number of recommendations on football stadium design.

The memories of that tragic day are still raw and the controversy about who was responsible continues. During the two decades that have passed a large amount of material has been published or otherwise made available. This Bibliography provides a detailed list of much of that information. We would welcome details of any articles, books, films or websites that have been inadvertently omitted¹.

Details of published information and unpublished archive material relating to the Disaster which is available in Sheffield Libraries and Archives are listed in the complementary study guide: Sources for the Study of the Hillsborough Stadium Disaster (available at www.sheffield.gov.uk/archives (click on publications)).

Adding to our collections

Sheffield Libraries and Archives seeks to preserve information about events in our city's history. Though a painful part of both Liverpool's and Sheffield's story we are keen to ensure that as much information about the disaster is preserved for current and future generations. We do not place any value judgements on the items in our care, other than we consider them worthy of permanent preservation; nor do we seek to interpret their meaning, for that is the role of the researcher. If you have copies of published articles, photographs or personal papers please consider safeguarding them for current and future generations by placing them in the care of Sheffield Libraries and Archives. It is only through the generosity of individuals and organisations that we are able to have a complete record of important events in the history of Sheffield and the nation.

¹ Note - with regard to films and television reports only those over 10 minutes in length have been included. A search of youtube and the BBC website will reveal a number of short films.
